COURSE DESCRIPTION

This practicum course will examine the design and implementation of the Community Change Model as a means of engaging people in analyzing and addressing their community concerns. The Community Change Model emphasizes the engagement of community members by focusing on critical questions through dynamic and meaningful activities that integrate the use of references. Once a community problem is identified, students in the course will research various aspects of the issue and design and implement an action project that involves members of the community in a meaningful way. In addition to course credit, students successfully completing this course will earn a certificate as an afterschool professional from The Afterschool Corporation – Center for Afterschool Excellence. Finally, Lehman College students will have the opportunity to be employed to work youth in select afterschool programs. This interdisciplinary course (Public Health, Black Studies, Latin Studies, American Studies, Middle/High School Education, and Early Childhood Education) requires a minimum of 3 hours of fieldwork.

INTRODUCTION

This practicum course will examine social problems using Community Change Model, which was designed by Kenyatta Funderburk as a means of engaging youth and adults in analyzing and addressing the concerns of their community. The Community Change Model integrates critical questions and references with interesting activities to involve people in their community. From this experience, students learn how to conduct research and work as a team, while developing valuable leadership and critical thinking skills. They also develop an appreciation for current events. The Community Change Model affords students the opportunity to apply what they learn to contribute to the growth and development of their community.

Students of this course will learn to engage community members in analyzing and addressing their neighborhood concerns using the Community Change Model. As an integral part of the Community Change Model Course, students will also select a social issue and target age-group, then design learning plans aligned with the Education Division's standard using the Community Change Model. In doing so, the class will work together to analyze and address a real issue that impacts their community.

REQUIRED PROJECTS

- In small groups, students will create newsletters about class activities and perspectives about specific aspects of a community concern selected to be explored. Students will research to develop and compile an age-appropriate, user-friendly newsletter with information addressing their selected Community Change topic. This newsletter will provide references (community based organizations, publications, videos, reports, etc.) that yields information about the definition, causes, effects and solutions to the issue.
- In small groups, students will design and implement a community action project to address at least one of the previously identified causes and effects of their selected Community Change topic. The action project must involve members of the community who visit the course and support in project planning and implementation.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. To increase students' knowledge of community organizing.
2. To develop students' skills in the design and implementation of the community organizing activities.
3. To develop students' appreciation and commitment to engaging people in analyzing and addressing social issues in their community.
4. To provide students with practical experience in community organizing.

REQUIREMENTS

- Individual assignments (50%)
- Group projects (50%)

 - Read "The Community Change Model" pages 4 -10, 15 - 22.

Week 3 (Saturday, February 13)

- No Saturday Classes

Week 4 (Saturday, February 20)

- Phase I Reflection
- In-Class Activity: Pre-Assessment
- In-Class Activity: Phase II: Statement of the Issue - The People's Court Prep: Legal teams representing select social issues will debate to convince the jurors that the topic that they represent is the most important for the class to address. The entire class will spend the rest of the semester analyzing and addressing whatever topic is selected by the jurors as a result of our court session. Each legal team must prepare their argument to help the judge and jury decide which topic they will select as our focus for the remainder of the semester.

- Assignment due 2/27
 - Review "The Community Change Model" pages 15 - 22.
 - Bring in picture of one of your loved ones aged 15 years or younger. A picture of you within this age range is fine.
 - Each legal team is to define their single issues and communicate the importance (relevance statement) of the course selecting their issue as the Community Change topic.
 - The judges and jury are to define each legal team's issues and communicate the importance (relevance statement) of the course selecting their issue as the Community Change topic. Refer to pages 18 - 19 to develop the format of your argument.
 - Vision statement: describe your "perfect world" or the picture of the reality you'd like to create. .
 - Other issues considered: list the other topics discussed in class.
 - Issue: the actual topic selected for the remainder of this semester.
 - Definition: explain what this problem means based on a reference or our working definition.
 - Examples: give examples of this problem.
 - Relevance statement: Explain why this issue is important to you.
 - Target population: state the ages of people, both adults and children, who you are concerned about being affected by this issue. It is o.k. to think broadly.
 - Target area: what geographical area are we most concerned about?
 - Statement of consequences: what will happen if nothing is done about this issue?
 - Judges and jury must develop the definition and relevance statements for each of the three topics.
 - The legal teams must develop this statement for their topic only.
 - Legal teams should use the following references to provide supportive evidence on their argument:
 - The New York City Department of Mental Health Community Profiles for zip code 10468 (<http://www.nyc.gov/html/doh/html/data/data.shtml>)
 - Keeping Track (<http://www.cccnewyork.org/aboutkt.html>)
